

Customer Service And System Support Should Be Ongoing And On-Site.

- Have you heard software enhancement rumors from your commissary company that never seem to materialize?
- Have you been promised a technical representative who has never shown up at your facility?
- Are your questions regarding software or training issues dealt with only over the phone and not at your facility?
- When you have a hardware issue, does your commissary company send a third party?

Take A Closer Look At Swanson

Swanson believes that training and customer service should be Ongoing and On-Site. For this reason we have established a nation-wide network of Service Centers to support our clients.

83% of the population of the United States is within 200 miles of a Swanson Service Center.

Swanson Services Corporation® has a unique view of computer hardware and software than any other commissary company:

- Swanson has our own staff of professional programmers.
- Swanson has a nation-wide network of System Resource Managers for installation, training and On-Site support.
- Swanson has no subcontracted 3rd or 4th parties for hardware maintenance.
- Swanson has representatives who will visit you in person and On-Site.

At Swanson, we view customer service and technical support as a critical component of our total service. We want to be your partner.

With Swanson, Customer Service Is Ongoing And On-Site.
